'I Still Can't Believe This Is My Kitchen': Discover the Longden's transformation

We recently caught up with Mr and Mrs Longden, who shared their experience of turning their outdated kitchen into the most beautiful room in their home.

From their very first visit to our Farnham Common showroom, they had an instant connection with a showroom display and this vision became a carefully planned makeover.

Discover the full transformation above - the journey truly speaks for itself!

"When I walked into the showroom, I saw my kitchen. That was it."

A design they connected with instantly

The Longdens had an old oak kitchen when they moved in and were ready for something that felt lighter and more practical.

That first showroom visit made the decision simple. The moment they saw the display, they could picture it in their own space.

"I didn't even want to look at anything else."

From there, the project was carefully planned around their home, lifestyle and the finish they wanted to achieve. The result is a kitchen that feels beautifully personal and completely at home.

"I still can't believe this is mine... it's beautiful."

Professional, reliable and respectful

For the Longdens, the experience was about more than the finished kitchen. It was the way the whole project was handled that made it feel special.

They described the team as professional, reliable and respectful of their home, with every stage thoroughly planned and communicated.

A kitchen that still feels brand new

More than a year on, the Longden's kitchen continues to exceed their expectations and still looks as fresh as the day it was completed.

"It still looks brand new."

The space proves great design is not just about first impressions, but about creating something that feels right, works beautifully and stands the test of time.

And perhaps the loveliest part?

It is now the most beautiful room in their home.

Don't just take our word for it...
